'TOSCA' SUNG AGAIN AT METROPOLITAN

Artists All Old Friends but Crimi, Whose Voice Pleases in Lyric Role.

SCOTTI IS IMPRESSIVE

Miss Farrar Is Admirable and Audience Contains Prominent Persons.

"Tosca" was presented at the Metro politan Opera House last night. The singers concerned in the entertainment were all old friends with the exception of Glolio Crimi, who is a new member of the company and had been heard only once before. At his debut last week he sang Rhadames in "Alda," a role which made heavy demands on his voice. At Charles H. Sherrill. were all old friends with the exception of that time the opinion was expressed here that he would be heard with

Mr. Crimi's voice was much more free and resonant last evening in the streaming phrases of Puccini's cant lens. The true quality of the voice was disclosed, a good quality, always grateful to the ear, and if not always filled with the eloquence of emotion at least musical, His demeanor on the stage showed a pleasing absence of constraint and selfconsciousness. There was no special distinction in his acting, but it was at any rate manly and graceful within the

In histrienie distinction Mr. Scotti in his familiar role of Scarpia stood quite alone. With his voice in fairly good condition he can always make a commanding figure of the minister of police! No matter how often you hear him you are always impressed with the sinister power of the character as he delinister power of the character as he delinister power of the character as he delinister power of the character as he delintragedy. One is always astonished when

OBITUARIES.

CAPT. FRANCIS ASH.

Word was received yesterday from St. John's, Newfoundland, of the death of Capt. Francis Ash, who had braved Arctic seas many times as pilot of United States revenue cutter Bear and who had a hand many years ago in the rescue of Lleut. A. W. Greely and his party of explorers, who were caught in the Polar ice after establish-ing a new farthest north record. Announcement of the death was con-tained in a letter sent to Bowrin; & Co., agents of the Red Cross Line, by Richard Ash, Capt. Ash's son. In late years Capt. Ash was skipper of the Red Cross steamship Portia, which ran between St.

steamship Portia, which ran between St. John's and New York. Capt. Ash directed the northward journey of the Bear when that craft was one of the units of the last relief expe-dition sent forth to rescue Greely and The relief expedition was in command of the late Rear Admiral Schley. Greely and his companions were slowly starving on the Arctic ice when the expedition found them. The Bear put into the cove near the shore of which the explorers were huddled. Their leather boots had provided the last food they had eaten. Capt. Ash carried Greely in his arms to the Bear.
